

PI

Week 45

November 5 - November 11, 2011

Nostalgic series returns to BBC One Northern Ireland

BBC Northern Ireland's rich television archives have been delved into once again as Those Were The Days returns for a second series

Scahdies Up The Chimley takes BBC Radio Ulster listeners back to the months after the Belfast Blitz and the experiences of a group of evacuees from the city as they adjust to life away from home in the safety of the country

Those Were The Days

BBC
NORTHERN

IRELAND

entertainment and retail, the universal exciting to look back into more than 50

The programme themes in this series

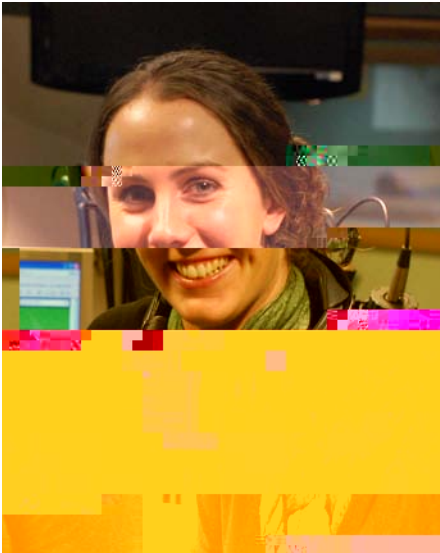

BBC
NORTHERN

IRELAND

On BBC Radio Ulster this week...

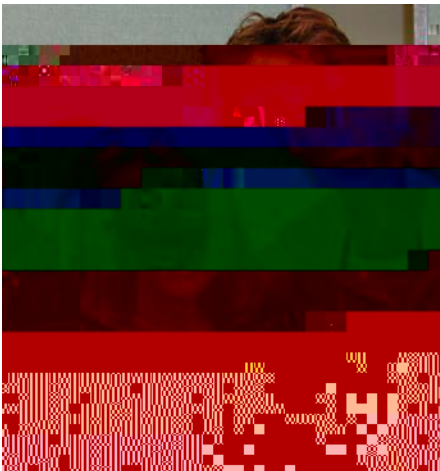

Niamh Costigan presents Studio Sessions on BBC Radio Ulster

folk, country, jazz, traditional Irish and classical music performances from local and inter-

Niamh says: "I'm a big music fan, and I have been lucky enough to mix some great live sessions here in the BBC Radio Ulster studios where I work, which is where I got the idea to to sift through the work of all the artists that have visited our studios recently, picking out have had some fantastic local acts in here lately, often in full-band sessions, and presenters like Gerry Anderson, Ralph McLean, Lynette Fay and Gerry Kelly are also great champions

Gillian Kearney and Michael Fassbender star in Dracula on BBC Radio Ulster

First published in 1897, the Irish author's epic novel about the Transylvanian Count is

Fassbender (X-Men: First Class, Jane Eyre, Inglourious Basterds, Hunger) as Jonathan

Kearney (Casualty, Justice, The Forsyte Saga) as Mina Murray and James Greene (Merlin,

Gerry Anderson broadcasts his BBC Radio Ulster programme live from Manhattan - the day after running the New York Marathon

Looking forward to his marathon challenge, Gerry says: "I'm looking forward to visiting a